REPORT SMITH OVER SCOTLAND

'BABY CLIPPER' OVER IRELAND?

LONDON, May 29 (INS)—A report received in London tonight stated that Thomas H. Smith, American flier, was over Wigtownshire, Scotland, at 4:15 p. m. today (12:15 p. m. Boston time).

THOMAS H. SMITH
Flier in Final Check

A tiny plane believed to be the four-cylinder monoplane in which the Los Angeles flier set out from Old Orchard, Me., yesterday, was sighted at a very high altitude three miles inland from the Wigtown coast.

Wigtown is a county on the southwesternmost tip of Scotland.

A plane answering the description of Smith's "puddle jumper" previously had been sighted over Londonderry, northern Ireland, at 3:20 p. m. (10:20 a. m. E. D. T.)

Meanwhile, the British Air Ministry for the second time during the day denied persistent reports that Smith had made a landing at Foynes, the trans-Atlantic mail plane base, refueled and taken off for England.

Officers at Baldonnel and other Irish airports likewise denied the Foynes landing.

The chief officer of the Portpatrick Coast Guard station on the Scottish coast said no sign had been seen of Smith despite a close watch. Smith would normally have struck across Portpatrick from Londonderry.

Weather was perfect and visibility excellent throughout most of the British Isles.

Fog Hid Smith's Fate Soon After Takeoff

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 29 (INS)—Rain and fog over the North Atlantic today obscured the fate of Tom Smith, 25, Los Angeles flier, who lifted his midget plane into the air at dawn yesterday on a perilous and unauthorized flight to Europe.

Smith was hopeful that the 65-horsepower, four-cylinder engine of the "Baby Clipper," as he christened it, would carry him 2800 miles to Slyne Head, Ireland, or perhaps farther, to England, by noon today. He estimated that the 150 gallons of gasoline would keep him aloft 40 hours at normal cruising speed of 85 miles an hour.

At 4:50 a. m., E. S. T., yesterday morning Smith headed his tiny monoplane, which is not equipped with radio, into the Atlantic mists, and about two hours later a plane believed to be his circled twice over the airport at St. John, N. B., his "jumping off" place on the "Great Circle" route to Europe.

"I've been preparing for this flight for seven years," Smith, a

Wages of Sin: Youth's Body In Morgue, Pal Faces Court

The battered body of a boy on a marble slab at Southern morgue, a police officer with a cut leg, a South End man behind bars at City prison—and a pile of cigarettes—were all that remained today of what police called a tragic attempt to burglarize a Beach street building in downtown Boston.

THEODORE RADZIK
Plunges to Death

For that pile of cigarettes, Theodore Radzik, 21, of Dorchester street, South Boston, died in a spectacular plunge, Patrolman Timothy Wallace nearly lost his life and Eli J. Arsenault, 29, of Canton street, South End, faces prison on burglary charges, police said.

Radzik, who has been in criminal courts since he was 14 years old, died as he raced madly over the roof of the Beach building and stumbled over the edge while police guns blazed.

HANGS BY ARM

Patrolman Wallace, one of six members of the special service squad in pursuit, fell through the skylight and dangled by one arm in an airshaft 100 feet deep several minutes, until he regained the rooftop, unaided.

Arsenault, also in police toils previously on burglary, larceny and auto theft charges, was nabbed as he hid behind a chimney to avoid bullets and capture, detectives said.

CALLED BY OWNER

The small heap of cigarettes was piled on the floor of the restaurant by thieves who had broken open a cellar window—pitiful evidence that "the wages of sin is death."

Police identified the dead man

Baby Clipper Radio 'Flash' Proves Fake

A radio "fake" angered the nation today with what presumed to be an authentic report to the effect that Tommy Smith, Los Angeles sportsman, had landed in Ireland in his four-cylinder, 65-horsepower "baby clipper," had refueled and had taken off again for London.

The report, widely broadcast and credited to a radio news service, was so circumspect it gave a location for the landing, and quoted Smith on the exigencies of the flight. This happened soon after noon, following cable reports a plane had been sighted over Ireland.

Newspaper offices were immediately flooded with telephone calls, and to every caller each newspaper was forced to give the same answer:

"There is no word of his having landed. The only report is that a plane, unidentified, was sighted over Londonderry, Ireland, and later over Wigtown, Scotland."

The broadcasting of the "fake" aroused universal indignation.

BACKUS OUSTER FAILS, 2-2

By a two-to-two vote, the state public utilities commission failed today to remove John H. Backus from his position as director of the securities-sales or "blue sky" division of the public utilities department.

Ouster proceedings had been brought against Backus by Governor Saltonstall, who charged him with official misstatements.

The tie vote left two alternatives to Governor Saltonstall if he desired to continue his efforts to remove Backus.

Under the statutes the governor has the individual power to remove Backus. Or, if he chose, Saltonstall might ask the commission to submit a transcript of evidence taken during lengthy hearings on the ouster, to John J. Curley, fifth member of the commission who has been ill.

The deadlock vote of the public utilities commission today was announced by the governor. He said Chairman McKeown and Commissioner Grant voted against the Backus ouster. Commissioners Whouley and Webber in favor of it.

The governor said he might comment further after he had had opportunity to study reports of the meeting and determine what impelled the vote of each commissioner.

Saltonstall charged Backus with "falsely impugning my motives" as a result of statements the director made before a legislative committee in discussing the chief executive's "economy" recommendation for abolition of the "blue sky" division.

Youth Lays Collings Murder to Hub Men

CHICAGO, May 29—Slayers of Benjamin Collings, who was bound and thrown from his yacht in Long Island Sound, off Stamford, Conn., eight years ago, were a Boston rum runner and his son, a 22-year-old alleged lake pirate asserted today.

The statement was made by Noble Charles Chambers, formerly of Gloucester, Mass., who had told police earlier that he was an eyewitness to the slaying and to the subsequent assault on Collings' young Boston wife.

Young Chambers also told Chicago police he witnessed the murder of a man outside Gloucester, where the victim was thrown off a boat and his wife and child set adrift.

Police at Gloucester said, however, that they have no record of such a case.

CITE HIS RECORD

Massachusetts state police said their records showed Chambers was picked up as a vagrant in Pittsfield, May 21, 1937, but was released, and that he was arrested in Boston on suspicion of breaking and entering in the nighttime, but was released April 6, 1938.

Two years ago he was arrested at South Bend, Ind., as a fugitive from a larceny charge and was turned over to police of Michigan City, Ind. There is no record immediately available as to disposition of that case.

Since its occurrence in September, 1931, the Collings murder has been a mystery to which, apparently, there never would be found a definite clue.

The nation's leading criminologists have had a finger in the long investigation, but always the result has been the same—nothing.

However, the story told by Chambers, arrested with Darnel Stevens, 22, while allegedly stripping a boat in Jackson Park harbor, gives credence to the theory that a man and a boy were "in on" the slaying.

Benjamin Collings

Chambers, who said Collings was slain by mistake in belief that he had informed on the Boston rum runner, declared he worked for the rum runner and his son.

The boy who accompanied two men aboard the Collings yacht, Penguin, off Stamford, was described as about 17 years old by the victim's widow, the former Lillian Chelius of Moultrie street, Dorchester.

She is the daughter of a former director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and now lives in Stamford with her 13-year-old daughter, who was also on board the yacht.

DR. CABOT WILLS WOMAN $100,000; LEAVES MILLION

Containing a $100,000 legacy to a Brookline woman as its only individual bequest, the will of the late Dr. Richard Clarke Cabot, professor of social ethics at Harvard University, was filed today in Middlesex probate court.

The document disposes of a Boston Brahmin art fortune estimated privately at well in excess of $1,000,000, leaving most of the money in trust for charitable purposes.

Two brothers of the doctor, who died May 7, a few weeks after he had made an outright gift of $50,000 to Simmons College to provide a school for social work, were not mentioned as beneficiaries.

WOMAN BENEFICIARY

They are Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and Prof. Philip L. Cabot of Milton who teaches in the Harvard Business School.

Principal private beneficiary under the terms of a codicil to the document is Mrs. Nina Halfdan Lee of Worthington road, Brookline, identified by counsel as the wife of the president of the Eastern Gas and Fuel Association.

Mrs. Lee received $100,000 outright, while relatives and servants of the Cabot family benefit under lifetime trusts, principal of which reverts eventually to the main trust fund established for charitable purposes.

The bulk of the estate is left in trust to be used for philanthropic causes "at the discretion of the trustees," and to carry on unfinished work begun by the Ella Lyman Cabot Foundation.

The Foundation was established in 1934 "for the promotion of art, literature, music, science, psychology, education and religion" on funds left by the late Mrs. Cabot.

The only explanation for the bequest to Mrs. Lee was given by counsel as follows:

"The deceased had been friendly with the Lee family for many years."

One trust fund of $100,000 was

Mrs. Kennedy Returns; Met By Parents

NEW YORK, May 29 (INS)—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, came home today on the liner Normandie for a short visit with her parents, John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor of Boston, and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Slim and chic in a blue serge suit, blue hat trimmed with white lace, and a silver fox fur, Mrs. Kennedy was making her first visit to this country since March 9, 1938. She traveled alone, leaving her husband and nine children in Europe.

After a few days in New York, which will include a visit to the World's Fair, she said, she will go to Boston with her parents. She has booked return passage on the United States liner Washington for June 14, which will get her to England in time for her daughter Eunice's debut at the embassy on June 22.

Being hostess at the London embassy, Mrs. Kennedy said, was hard work, "but great fun all the time."

"Even the weekends have become rather hectic," she added. "Most of the crises have occurred during weekends."

FATHER SEES TRUCK CRUSH GIRL TO DEATH

Torn from her father's grasp when a truck struck her, four-year-old Rose Lamattina of 949 Albany street, Roxbury, was drawn beneath the vehicle's wheels today and crushed to death.

The accident occurred before the horrified father, John Lamattina, 40, who had another daughter, two-months-old Eleanor, in his arms, could do anything to save the older girl.

The children are two of eight in the family and the father, a WPA worker, was taking care of the two while the mother, Mrs. Mary Lamattina, was out shopping.

Lamattina had taken the girls for a walk, carrying the baby, and was returning across Albany street, at Dearborn square, when the accident occurred.

Police took to Dudley street station, for questioning, the alleged driver of the truck, Burpee Crowell of Eustis street, Roxbury.

MERCURY CLIMBS, BUT FAIR, COOLER HOLIDAY LIKELY

With the thermometer hourly touching new highs for the year, Boston stripped to its shirtsleeves today, hopeful of a less humid Memorial Day holiday.

Despite the climbing mercury, which touched 82 at 11 a. m., a degree higher than yesterday at the same time, the city was a bit more comfortable, because of lowered humidity.

Fair skies and cooler breezes were promised by the weatherman for tomorrow, indicating an ideal holiday, so far as the weather gods can make it so. Gentle southwest winds were predicted.

Today's blazing heat followed a disastrous electric storm last night which left thousands of dollars worth of damage in its tangled wake.

WIDESPREAD DAMAGE

The celestial air raid dropped bolts on houses in Boston, Quincy, Brockton and along the South Shore, while in Brockton drivers were startled to see manhole covers blown up by accumulated gas to a height of 50 feet. Striking Greater Boston late in the afternoon the storm drove the temperature down 22 degrees in two hours, from 90 to 68.

In the blinding downpour here a street car and an oil truck collided, causing injuries to at least two persons, while motorists who were halted by red and amber lights at Washington st. at Summer st. discovered that they were "frozen" that way by the storm.

PUTS OUT LIGHTS

At Washington and State sts. and at Staniford st. the lights went out. Even the police two-way radio went blank for a time.

Police estimated there were 200,000 persons at Revere Beach before the storm broke. At Nantasket Beach there were 50,000 and scattered thousands at other resorts. The first rain and rumblings of thunder drove them off.

The high mark of 90, making a record for the year thus far, was touched at 3:30 p. m. the weather bureau reported. The storm was general over New England with local rainfall at a little less than an inch, but portions of the South Shore and Cape Cod escaped the deluge.

The crash of a Boston Elevated street car and an oil truck came at the height of the storm at Causeway and Beverly streets. The car was bound for Keany square when it collided with a truck of the Becker Transportation Company of Cambridge.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Motorman Michael Leonard, 62, of Knapp st., Somerville, was taken to City Hospital and treated for injury to his left hip and abrasions. Bernice Pocetti, 23, of Armory st., Charlestown, complained of injuries to her right arm. She went home for treatment.

Lightning also struck the tower of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Gardner, causing damage estimated at $3000 to the roof and interior.

The Salvation Army Day Nursery in the West End, a five-story brick building used by children during the week, was struck. A small fire resulted and was quickly extinguished.

Heavy floods were caused in Arlington Heights as 12 water mains beside a street construction job were washed away. Citizens guarded the spot until police came.

PEGGY FEARS LOSES

Glamorous Peggy Fears lost her Massachusetts fight to collect back alimony from A. C. ("Blumey") Blumenthal, multi-millionaire promoter, today when the State Supreme Court's full bench handed down an opinion prepared by Justice James J. Ronan to the effect that the Commonwealth cannot concern itself with her marital difficulties.

Under Massachusetts laws, the opinion states, a wife cannot sue a husband over a simple matter of money indebtedness, which, it says, is the basis for the present action.

Peggy, whose marriage to Blumenthal has been off again, on again, and, at last reports, was said to be sort of belwixt and between, sued here on the basis of a $10,999.10 judgment obtained in New York in connection with a separate agreement.

She sued specifically on the allegation that Blumenthal had turned over certain properties—stocks, notes, etc.—to Mrs. Miriam Rogers of Brookline, his sister.

The suit, filed in Dedham, asked that the conveyance of the property be set aside, and judgment satisfied. Mrs. Rogers filed a demurrer—a legal "so what?"

Justice Ronan in his opinion stated:

"Our courts are without jurisdiction to hear or to determine a claim based entirely on a money indebtedness by one spouse to another. Under our laws she is incapacitated to sue her husband for the collection of a money obligation."

Peggy recently has been singing in night clubs, most recently appearing in Hollywood. Blumenthal is reported to be in New York.

Seeks to Divorce Man Who Went Back to Ma

Instead of wife running back home to Mama, it was John H. Hatch of Lynn who did the retreat, Mrs. Colata H. Hatch of Lawton avenue, Lynn, testified in Salem probate court today in seeking to divorce him.

She charged cruel and abusive treatment and neglect to provide, and Judge John V. Phelan took her petition and two other wives' petitions for divorce under advisement.

Mrs. Hatch testified that after their secret marriage in February, 1935, they quarreled frequently over money matters, and he often became abusive.

On March 20, 1937, she said, she found a note from him in which he said he was going back to his mother.

Mrs. Anna I. Newton of Mason street, Salem, seeking a divorce from Herbert H. Newton, address unknown, charged desertion and neglect to provide.

Father of their six children, Newton got up on May 1, 1933, walked out of the house, his wife testified, and she has never seen him since.

Mrs. Doris May Eaton of Marblehead sought a divorce from Chandler G. Eaton of Middletown, whom she married March 20, 1929.

She said that on April 30, 1935, he left for a sea voyage of a month, but when his boat returned he did not come home.

Later she saw him at Marblehead Yacht Club, but he refused to go back with her. She charged desertion and neglect to provide.

KING, QUEEN REACH WEST COAST ON CANADA TOUR

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 29 (AP)—Rolling along in their 12-car palace train through 500 miles of scenic grandeur from the top of the Rockies to the Pacific coast, King George and Queen Elizabeth came today to Vancouver, metropolis of British Columbia, where 500,000 people waited to welcome them.

After their 36-hour rest at Banff the royal couple was ready for a big day. The civic reception, ceremonial address and a drive through the city, with presentations and handshaking all along the line, were before them.

Late today they will board the steamship Princess Marguerite for Victoria, capital of British Columbia and the most English bf all Canadian cities.

The British Sovereigns came to Vancouver over the scenic route from Banff, which they left yesterday morning in an automobile that took them to Lake Louise and on across the Continental Divide to Field, where they caught their special train.

NEWSMEN CATCH UP

Forty newspapermen and photographers, who missed the pilot train traveling 30 minutes ahead of the royal train, raced across the mountains at breakneck speed and caught their train at the same station.

They had been caught in the Banff Hotel at the moment when the King and Queen were leaving and had to display the usual deference to royalty by waiting until the King and Queen left—with Canadian Royal Mounted Police on hand to see they did it.

STUNNINGLY GARBED

Stylists said the Queen was dressed in the most stunning costume she has drawn from her extensive wardrobe for her American tour. Her dress coat and her hat were a deep, dusky blue.

Her long, light wool coat, falling to the hem of her crepe frock, was split almost to the hips at both sides, giving a paneled effect as she walked. Her high-heeled pumps were dull gray suede, and she carried a gray bag and a spray of pink orchids.

All this did not prevent her from climbing into the cab of the leading engine of the three that pulled the royal train up the eastern slope of the Selkirk Range.

She and the King were smiling from the first cab window as the engines pulled into Stoney Creek with the royal special. They had ridden 14 miles on special seats built behind the fireman's seat so they could get the full benefit of the mountain vistas.

Vandenberg Would Run for President

WASHINGTON, May 29 (INS)—Senator H. Vandenberg of Michigan made himself formally available today for the Republican nomination for the President next year, and at the same time proposed that any G. O. P. candidate pledge himself in advance to a single term in the White House.

Vandenberg's position was made known in a letter to Gov. Dickinson of Michigan and Rep. Mapes (R.), Michigan, leaders in the "Draft Vandenberg for President" movement which has swept upon the capital from the Senator's home state.

Although the senator—"Van" to his colleagues—said he was prepared to run for re-election to the Senate in the 1940 campaign, he added:

"If there are subsequent responsibilities of a broader nature I shall meet them to the best of my ability."

Vandenberg's entry into the presidential arena, however oblique the entry may be, leaves his unofficial managers free to seek pledged delegates to next summer's G. O. P. convention wherever they can be found.

By leaving the door open for his nomination, Vandenberg thus has departed from the group of Republican presidential possibilities who prefer to let their ambitions drift with the political tide—at least for the present.

In this group are District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Taft and Gov. Bricker of Ohio, along with the drove of dark horses following in their wake.

In expressing his novel suggestion for a candidate pledged to one term in the White House, Vandenberg said that the Republican party "must strive . . . to produce an administration in which a prepledged, one-term President is manifestly free of al incentive but the one job of saving America."

Bay State Joins Nation in Honoring Dead of 6 Wars

Memorial Day—annual occasion for tribute to the hero dead of six wars and for remembrance of departed loved ones—will be observed throughout the state tomorrow in fitting, impressive services and parades.

Highlight of the day's observances will be participation of 46 of the surviving 79 G. A. R. veterans in Massachusetts in memorial ceremonies conducted by World War veterans and auxiliary organizations.

Cemeteries will be thronged with families paying homage to their departed members with prayer and floral offerings at their graves.

And as all mourned those who died in war, the police department prepared to honor those who were killed in defense of the social order.

40 POLICE HEROES

Forty graves of policemen, who died in the line of duty, were to be decorated with wreaths in appropriate ceremonies, supervised by Lieut. Andrew Markhard, department drill-master.

The oldest police grave to be visited was that of Ezekiel W. Hodson in Forest Hills, who was shot to death by a burglar in 1857.

Some wreaths were sent out of town—one to Rockland, Me.—in instances where the policemen had been buried away from Boston. In such cases local chiefs of police were asked to officiate.

It is estimated that 18,000 graves of veterans will be decorated in Boston and vicinity, of which 5800 are in Boston proper. Each grave will be adorned with a flag and a wreath, the cost being estimated at approximately 42 cents per grave.

A WPA project, assigned last year to the task of locating the graves of forgotten veterans, has found 1000 which will be honored this year.

One of the largest parades tomorrow will be that of Roxbury Post No. 44, American Legion, which starts at 9 a. m. from post headquarters in Roxbury street, and will proceed to Joseph Warren square.

After brief exercises, the procession will continue to the Eustis street burying ground where a volley will be fired over the graves, and taps sounded. Then busses will be boarded for Holyhood cemetery, where further exercises will be held.

WILL DECORATE TABLET

West Roxbury Post No. 167, American Legion, will attend memorial mass at 7:45 a. m. at the Holy Name Church, later decorating a tablet at post headquarters. At 9 o'clock, accompanied by Girl and Boy Scouts, the post will hold services at the West Roxbury Cemetery, decorating graves of veterans of the Revolutionary and Civil wars. At 10 o'clock the Kane Post and Crosscup-Pishon Posts will form with West Roxbury Post on Billings Field and march to St. Joseph's Cemetery, where exercises will be held and graves decorated. Dist. Atty William J. Foley of Suffolk County will be speaker.

G. A. R. veterans will participate in exercises at the Catholic, Codman, South and Cedar Grove Cemeteries in Dorchester, with Philip McMorrow delivering the oration, and at the Fairview Cemetery in Hyde Park. Former Mayor Malcolm Nichols will give the oration at the Soldiers' Monument, Jamaica Plain.

SALVATION ARMY RITES

An impressive service will be conducted by the Salvation Army at their plot in Forest Hills Cemetery at 9 o'clock. Led by Lieut.-Col. Edmund C. Hoffman, chief executive in New England, provincial and divisional officers, with corps commanders and workers, will pay tribute to Salvation Army dead.

At the Holy Cross cemetery exercises of the Lawrence Flaherty Post, American Legion, Attorney General Paul A. Dever will be orator.

With the Allied Orders of the G. A. R. as guests, the United Spanish War Veterans will conduct services in the Cambridge cemetery and later at the North Cambridge Catholic cemetery.

FRENCH HONOR U. S. DEAD

PARIS, May 29 (AP)—The graves of 30,000 American soldiers who fought and died in the mud of northern France were decorated today in memorial services under the Stars and Stripes and the French tricolor.

Honor detachments of French troops and American and French delegations attended the ceremonies, which were held a day earlier than the American Memorial Day to coincide with the French Whitsun holiday.

The American Overseas Memorial Day Association, co-operating with the American Legion, decorated graves throughout France, including those of six Union and Confederate sailors who fought a Civil War battle off Cherbourg. Services were held in Paris churches and at all war cemeteries.

Ambassador Bullitt

French war industries are melting down scrap iron picked up from the World War battlefields. Recently collected in Belleau Wood were a captured German cannon, still pointed toward Paris, rusty machine guns and piles of abandoned rifles.

After placing a wreath on the tomb of the French Unknown Soldier today, United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt was scheduled to speak at Suresnes cemetery, outside Paris, and at the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial at Garches.

Bullitt and Premier Daladier spoke yesterday in dedication of a new American Legion cemetery at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris, starting the week-long commemoration.

"Let us not forget that there are times when men must take up arms to save all that is worthy in human life and that if arms break peace they also defend it," Bullitt said.

Pupils to Present Recital Friday

More than 150 pupils of Kay A. McDermott will present their annual dance recital Friday night at Jordan Hall.

Among the headliners in the review will be Jackie Gallagher, Pattie Ann Rosemond, Virginia Lutz, Joseph Dardano, Virginia Milliken, Evelyn Hurld, Diane Fontes, Beverly Doyle, Ann Gillespie, Lois McMenimon, Floy Rowland, Rita Manning, Peggy Hart, Reginia Gannon, Jeanne Pietrowski and Joan Newman.

5 of 8 Children Burn To Death in Home

TAMA, Ia., May 29 (INS)—The five youngest out of eight children in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Price perished here when flames destroyed their frame farm home.

Price and his wife were visiting neighbors. Victims in the fire were Harry 9, William, 7, Eudella, 5, John, 3, and Daniel, 1. Thomas, Richard and Jack managed to escape. The fire broke out shortly after midnight. Nearby residents arrived too late to reach the children, trapped on the second floor.

NAVY TO CHECK ALL NEW SUBS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 29—While divers braved turbulent seas to push salvage operations on the Squalus, with her crew of 26 dead men, activities of high naval officials today gave evidence of a growing conviction that a faulty air-induction valve sent the submarine to its doom.

Orders were issued demanding a thorough study of the design and installation of similar valves in two submarines now under construction in Portsmouth, the Sea Raven and Sea Wolf, the Boston Evening American learned.

It was also reported on reliable authority that other vessels of the same class as the sunken Squalus, such as her sister ship Sculpin, will be ordered to drydocks for a check on induction valve equipment.

The order will affect half a dozen large submarines assigned to both the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, it was said.

Full answer to the mystery of the sinking will not be known, however, until air-filled pontoons succeed in lifting the submarine to the surface—which may take weeks.

Divers working on the submarine reported difficulty in breathing at the great depth due to air "freezing" in their lines in the low temperature. Officials said "dehydration" of the oxygen and helium mixture being used would remedy this.

Yvonne Wins Quins' Fifth Birthday Test

CALLANDER, Ont., May 29 (Canadian Press)—Yvonne, the next to last in weight of the Dionne quintuplets, beat her sisters in blowing out candles during the celebration yesterday of their fifth birthday.

Yvonne blew out four candles on her cake. As a last-minute surprise the children were given individual cakes besides one large angel cake for the party with their parents, on sister and two brothers. Marie, Annette and Emilie scored three with their puffs. Cecile managed only two.

Large, brown-eyed sleeping dolls from their mother and father were among the most prized of the girls' many presents. Birthday cards, gifts, flowers and luck charms came from all parts of Canada and the United States.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe kissed each of his charges when he visited them in the nursery before the party. The children wanted to return the kisses today, Dr. Dafoe's 56th birthday.

"It was the happiest birthday we have spent with the children," their father said when he, his wife, two sons, Daniel and Oliva, Jr., and daughter, Pauline, returned home last evening from the four-hour party of the quintuplets.

Three other children, Ernest, Rose and Therese, have returned to their schools in Quebec and the baby, Victor, was upset by teething.

Week-End Auto Crashes Kill 3; Injure Many

Critically injured when two cars crashed at Veterans of Foreign Wars Parkway and LaGrange street, West Roxbury, Angela J. Mendolia, 24, of East Lenox street, Roxbury, died at City Hospital today.

Meanwhile, deaths of two boys and injuries to 13 other persons were added to the week-end toll of highway accidents in Massachusetts.

In Plymouth four-year-old Roger Travassos died at Jordan Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile near his home.

Hurled to the pavement when his bicycle collided with an automobile in Attleboro, Donald Pelletier, 12, of East street, Attleboro, was killed. In a similar accident in the same town Doman Labonte, 11, was seriously injured on New Boston road near his home.

Two others were seriously injured in the West Roxbury accident. Mrs. Mary White, 28, of State road, East Wayland, passenger in a car driven by her husband, Francis, and James McDonald, 25, of Harrison avenue, South End, driver of the car carrying Mendolia, were treated at the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

Six persons were injured, one seriously, in a head-on collision between two autos last night in the Fenway, near Boylston st., Back Bay. Mrs. Bessie Kaktolis, 48, of Tremont st., Boston, was thrown through the windshield of one auto and suffered severe lacerations and leg injuries.

Two youths, riding in an apparently stolen roadster, crashed into the auto of Arthur Perette of Granite street, Quincy, as he was driving into an ice cream stand in Old Colony boulevard near the Neponset bridge.

The two youths, Perette told police, jumped from the machine and fled after the crash. His wife and two children, Doreen, four, and Arthur, two, were treated at Quincy City Hospital for slight injuries.

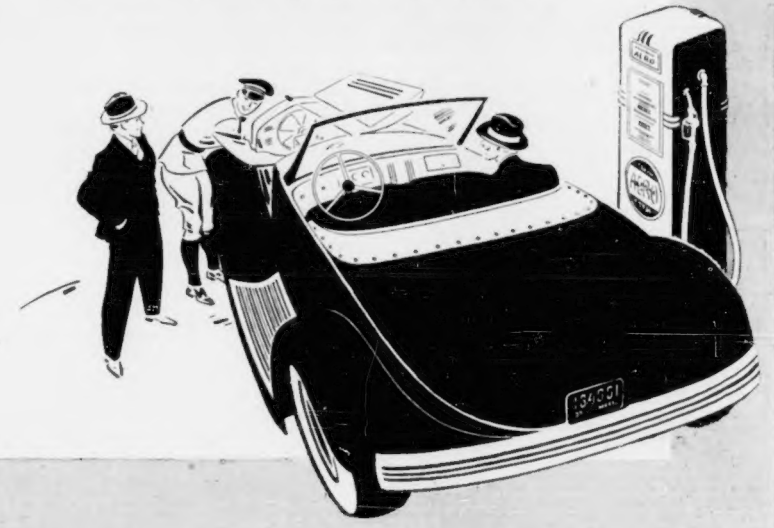
Have you heard the one about the Traveling Salesman?



Driving costs and a dependable motor mean a lot to him. He switched to Jenny Solvenized Gasoline. As a result he improved starting and pick-up, eliminated valve trouble that had caused lay-ups of his car, and increased his mileage per gallon to the highest he had ever had. Here's the reason—

Jenny Solvenized contains a concentrate which dissolves gum and so loosens carbon and lets it blow out the exhaust. This frees valves and rings which may have been sticking. When they seal tighter, compression is increased. This means greater power from less gasoline, because gasoline which used to leak away is saved and used.

Greater mileage and better motor efficiency with Jenny Solvenized are guaranteed. Start using Jenny Solvenized today and save money.

STATE AXE HITS SIX MORE JOBS

Six more state public works department employes, several of them formerly prominent in politics, were dropped today from $2160-a-year jobs as right-of-way negotiators.

Those who bowed their heads to the economy axe included former City Councillor Henry L. Selvitella of East Boston, Tony A. Garafano of Saugus, Francis E. Devlin of Quincy, eLo J. Garong of Cambridge, Israel Grossman of Dorchester and Edward F. McGuire of Clinton.

Previously announced was the dropping of former State Senate President James G. Moran of Mansfield.

He held an appointment as right-of-way negotiator, but had been on unpaid leave of absence because of ill-health.

Reason for the payroll cuts was recent action of the Legislature in voting distribution of $19,200,000 highway funds to cities and towns for 1939 and 1940.

Consequent curtailment of state highway department expenditures necessitated present budget paring, it was stated.

Elimination of the seven right-of-way negotiators will save the Commonwealth more than $15,000 in annual salaries.

This trust is to terminate when the children reach the age of 22, with the principal reverting, as in the other case, to the general trust.

The will opened with a paragraph of humble thanks for a happy life.

"I, Richard O. 2 GUILTY IN REVERE CASES

Acquitted last week with eight others on a charge of conspiracy to set up and maintain a gambling nuisance, William L. O'Brien, Jr., of Revere, and Thomas O'Connell of Athol pleaded guilty in superior court today to two other indictments.

One charged them with maintaining the North Shore Club in Revere for the registering of bets, the other with gaming.

On the first charge, Judge Allan G. Buttrick fined the two men $400 each and on the second charge $100 each.

Another indictment, also having to do with the club, a converted garage, was not pressed by Assistant Attorney General John S. Derham.

It was announced by Derham that on Wednesday he will go to trial in the cases of about 20 defendants charged with conspiracy to set up and maintain a gambling nuisance at the Ruby Club in Revere.

As in the case of the North Shore Club, these defendants will include former Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere, Police Chief Edward J. Tighe, and Lieutenant Henry Tracy and Patrolman William C. Gibson, former members of the Revere vice squad.

5 Seized Here In Dope Case

Federal agents and police sprang a trap today on Greater Boston members of an alleged inter-state dope smuggling ring, said to have distributed at least $250,000 worth of narcotics in New England.

Four men and one woman were arrested on secret indictments charging conspiracy to violate federal narcotic laws.

Also indicted and sought were another woman and three other men.

Gathering of evidence against the accused persons was featured by a wild auto chase in which one of the indicted men tossed away a package containing 360 grains of dope, United States Attorney Edmund J. Brandon revealed.

He said the package was found by a Somerville schoolgirl, whose parents turned it over to police.

According to Brandon, the ring smashed today had been operating in New York and New England since 1935.

Under arrest today awaiting arraignment were Mary and John Lechiatto of Willard avenue, Medford; Charles A. Cassino, formerly of Boston but arrested in New York; Nicholas Gingando, Gore street, East Cambridge, and James Cassetta of Lenox sreet, Roxbury.

Under indictment, but still at large, were Annie and James N. Smith of Columbus avenue, South End; Andrew F. Fiorino of Allen street, West End, and Daniel DePrimo, formerly of Boston but supposedly to be in Italy.

Britons Sure Russia Will Agree to Pact

By the Associated Press

Whitsun holidays gave Europe's diplomats a rest and Europe's millions at least temporary respite from alarms today with Soviet Russia hold secret the answer to the continent's biggest question.

That was: Will Russia accept Britain's proposals, approved by France, for bringing the Soviet Union into the British-French front?

Moscow still was silent on the identical messages delivered to the Kremlin Saturday by representatives of Britain and France, but in London the press and public took agreement for granted.

ASSURANCE OF PEACE

Some informed British circles believed, despite absence of any outward sign of Russian approval or disapproval, that Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to London, would be instructed to accept the proposals for a mutual assistance accord on his return there today from Geneva.

British optimism, in which a British-French-Russian line-up was hailed generally as a great assurance of peace, appeared to have swung feeling sharply in favor of Prime Minister Chamberlain as he began his third year at the head of Britain's government.

EYES ON FAR EAST

Some foreign observers in Moscow thought Russia, however, might wait to see what Britain and France would do in connection with recent Japanese actions in the Far East before committing herself definitely.

In Spain, Nationalists said Generalissimo Francisco Franco would fulfill his promise to send some all foreign troops by the end of the week.

The German Condor legion of 5000 already has sailed, about 12,000 Italians will embark at Cadiz on Wednesday, about 500 Portuguese have been concentrated at Salamanca for home-going and the return of Moorish troops to Morocco also has begun.

Special service squad officers were rushed to Beach street after police headquarters was notified by the owner of a first-floor restaurant in the building that burglars were in the place.

William J. McDonald, of Clifton st., Dorchester, who was working as superintendent of the restaurant for his brother, Charles, telephoned the latter when he became suspicious and Charles called the restaurant owner. He notified police.

Officers found a rear window of the restaurant broken and merchandise piled nearby.

As one group started a tour of the building other officers were sent to the roofs of adjoining structures to converge on the burglars.

Reaching the third floor officers found the door of a dress shop had been broken open. At the same time they heard footsteps on the floor above.

As they dashed upstairs, they could hear the noise of men rushing up the stairs above them.

Officer Dennis Riordan fired a warning shot as the fleeing men dashed out on the roof.

GRIFFIN AS DEBT ENVOY?

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, May 29—Senator Pat McCarran, Nevada Democrat, suggested today that Great Britain publicly and definitely acknowledge the war debts due Uncle Sam.

Senator McCarran made his suggestion in endorsing a resolution that would send William Griffin, editor and publisher of the New York Enquirer, as a special envoy to defaulting European nations to remind them of their obligations due the United States. McCarran said:

"As far as I know, Britain has never acknowledged the war debts due the United States. She has always questioned them. But I am convinced that the time has come in the course of the recent desperate international situation for Britain, along with the rest of the war debt defaulting nations, to publicly, completely and definitely acknowledge these obligations due this nation. The world would find such a wholehearted debt acknowledgment to be a definite step for peace.

"Thus, I am glad that a congressional and citizens movement is under way to appointment of William Griffin to be America's official war debt envoy to Europe."

Duce Praises Fascist Women

ROME, May 29 (AP)—Premier Mussolini exalted the part Italian women are playing in Italy's march to greater power in a brief speech before 70,000 representatives of women's Fascist organizations.

Il Duce appeared on his balcony at Venezia palace to address his huge audience after legions of women and girls, some bearing bayonetted rifles, had marched past him in a mammoth parade along the Street of Empire.

The paraders represented all branches of activities of women's Fascist organizations—the training of women for colonial life, for nursing, anti-aircraft defense and industrial work to replace men.

3 Things You Cannot Live Without:

Fresh Air, Pure Water, and Sound Sleep. Without the proper amount of each, you cannot hope to enjoy perfect health.

I'm not intending to preach about how much deep breathing, water drinking or sleeping you should do: That's YOUR business.

But the matter of getting the most good out of your sleeping hours is OUR business—a matter to which I personally devote more time than to any other two things about my business, combined!

In all Kane stores you'll find everything from Box-Springs to Blankets, carefully selected to contribute to more refreshing, more healthful slumber.

We know about weights and tensions of mattresses and springs; about the count required in a sheet to produce a luxury-feeling; about the content of blankets and comforters if they're to do their job! and about pillows for under your head. We know, too, about creating entire bedrooms whose interiors fairly breathe peace, relaxation and rest.

All these things, out of our study and experience, we put into our merchandise. They are plus-values you get at Kane's, without charge. You'll find our prices and terms are right. (I think, even surprisingly low.)

Other Cripples Pray At Shrine for Quick Recovery of Snite

LOURDES, May 29 (INS)—Unmindful of their own infirmities, scores of supplicants at the shrine of Lourdes asked divine aid today for Fred B. Snite, Jr., infantile paralysis victim who journeyed from America to this citadel of miraculous cures.

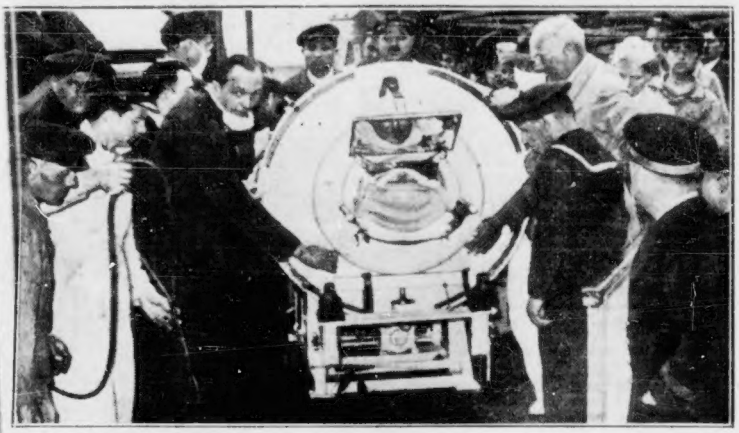
Quietly and without informing him of their intentions, many of the crippled and the blind who have long sought spiritual consolation and possibly restored health of their own turned from prayers for themselves and besought Providence to help the courageous youth whose long imprisonment in an "iron lung" has failed to dim his spirit or his faith.

It was a spectacle unprecedented in the long history of the grotto whose atmosphere engenders such intense faith.

Young Snite himself spent 15 consecutive hours in prayer before the statue of Ste. Bernadette, patron of the grotto. He reiterated that he was "feeling fine."

Young Snite is participating unfailingly in all the religious services of the grotto and has made many friends among the habitues of Lourdes. They are praying for him in relays of a few hours each.

His face tanned by the steady sunshine of the last few days, young Snite is spending his idle hours touring the surrounding countryside.



International News Photo

HIS PILGRIMAGE—Fred Snite, Jr., infantile paralysis victim, shown in his "iron lung" as he arrives at Le Havre, France, from the liner Normandie. He is making a pilgrimage to the miraculous Grotto of Lourdes where many a cripple has been cured.

Snite's Father Tells How Lourdes Gives Son Peace

By JOSEPH McCARTHY

Former classmate of young Snite, who is a writer now on the New York Journal-American.

NEW YORK, May 29 (INS)—The "miracle" for Fred B. Snite, Jr., "The Man in the Iron Lung," has been accomplished.

He has found the peace and spiritual strength and the full happiness they bring at the shrine of Our Lady at Lourdes, France.

I have talked to his father over the transatlantic telephon as Fred lay beside him. That was after they had taken his useless body from the iron lung, wrapped it in a towel and placed it in the cold bubbling water at the grotto.

"It was," said Fred to his father, "the happiest moment of my life."

FACE ALL AGLOW

The colonel's voice seemed to b shaking with emotion as he told me.

"You should see him, Joe. His face is all lit up and beaming. I have never seen him like this." The colonel then paused and said: "Tell all his friends, Joe, that the 'miracle' is over, as far as Fred is concerned, as far as the doctors are concerned.

"Fred has found the spiritual consolation he has sought."

I remembered then how Fred had told me that he was making the 5000-mile journey to Lourdes, not seeking a miracle to cure the paralysis that has gripped his body but not his mind. He was going to seek peace with the Prince of Peace and strength from the Tower of Strength.

I could see the scene as Fred lay on his porch overlooking the River Gave. It was dusk at Lourdes.

WATCHES PILGRIMS

"The pilgrims," said the colonel, "are winding down the road to the shrine. It is the pilgrimage of the lighted candle. The cripples are winding past carrying their candles and chanting hymns.

"Fred can see them through his mirror. Soon he will join them. It is beautiful, an impressive sight."

They do not only pray for themselves, but for the brown curly-haired 25-year-old Chicago youth whose sparkling grin and thoughtful eyes have won their love.

"The victims have come to Fred," said the colonel, "in their wheel chairs and cruiches and they have told him:

"'We are praying not for us, but for you. If you are made well, we'll be happy.'"

Fred went to the shrine this morning with two of his nurses and the sisters. He said, according to the colonel:

"Now I want to be put in the water."

There were objection, murmurs of disapproval from the nurses, the sisters. Fred was adamant.

IN WATER HALF-HOUR

"So they opened the respirator," the colonel said, "and they took off the sheet around him. They wrapped him in a towel and put him in the cold water for a half-hour.

"It must have been to him worth the days and months and years he has been in the iron lung."

The length of time in the water was in itself not remarkable, for Fred can survive out of the lung for nearly an hour due to his own will-power to make the "dead" lungs in his chest function.

The colonel said that when the specialists at Lourdes had examined Fred and learned the history of his case, they said:

"The miracle of Fred is over. This man should not be alive. That he is alive—that is his miracle."

native of Clarksburg, W. Va., declared before the takeoff. "I'm not doing any 'Corrigan.' I'm undertaking this flight to prove it can be done solo in a light plane. I'm convinced we must have test flights in the interest of the aviation industry."

The flier faced disciplinary action by the civil aeronautics authority for failing to obtain a license for the flight.

Smith Always Interested in Air

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 29 (AP)—Tommy Smith, 24-year-old aviator bound on a unheralded flight to Europe, has been puttering around with airplanes since he was a lad in knee pants.

Stocky, handsome and confident, Smith learned to fly before he was old enough to get a license he was an automobile. By the time he was 20, he owned a couple of planes and operated an airport and a aviation flying school here.

COLLINGS DEATH LAID TO HUB MAN AND SON

when the slayers boarded it eight years ago.

DETAILS YACHT CRIMES

Young Chambers told his story first to Chief James Kerr of the Chicago Park district police.

Today the former Gloucesterite went over it again under questioning by District Attorney Fred J. Munder of Suffolk County, Long Island, N. Y., in whose jurisdiction the slaying comes and who flew here last night from New York.

He had been called by Chicago police after Chambers explained "what took place" on the Collings yacht seven days before the body of the one-time wealthy Stamford broker and engineer washed ashore.

On September 10, 1931, a Long Island constable came upon Mrs. Lillian Collings, daughter of a retired Boston music composer.

"Something terrible has happened," he was told.

REVEALED MURDER

The frantic woman revealed her 38-year-old husband had been murdered aboard the yacht and thrown into the sound; that the five-year-old girl had been left aboard, sleeping, and that Mrs. Collings had been taken by the murder pair in a canoe, attacked and placed in the motor boat where she was found.

A few hours later, just before sunrise, the Penguin was found by a party of boatmen drifting with all lights off. To the boatmen's cries for the captain, a child's voice piped up:

"I'm not the captain. I am Barbara."

Barbara was alone on the Penguin.

Mrs. Collings was almost prostrated. She told a remarkable story. She said that when the two men drew up in the canoe the night before they told her husband they had a wounded man and wanted a tow to South Norwalk, Conn.

Collings refused because he had no boat lights. The visitors came aboard and repeated their demand.

WIFE HEARD ROW

Mrs. Collings said she was in the cabin at the time, having put Barbara to bed.

She heard her husband and the two visitors quarreling. The intruders suddenly attacked her husband. She said she twice tried to interfere but was overpowered. Both pirates seized her and pushed her into the canoe.

Before they pushed her into the canoe, Mrs. Collings said, the pirates already had bound and thrown her husband overboard. She said she heard a splash as his body hit the water.

Describing the bizarre trip in the canoe with the two men, she said it was dark at the time except for the stars and the half-obscured moon. The kidnapers seemed nervous and paddled carefully, to avoid splashing.

HIS BODY FOUND

She couldn't imagine what the men were going to do with her. She begged them to rescue her husband and they assured her he was "all right." She pleaded to be taken back to her baby on the Penguin.

Finally the men drew up near the shore and transferred her to an open motor boat.

The body of Collings was found as his wife insisted it would be—trussed up and with a gash on the head. He had been beaten to death, bound and tossed over the side of the Penguin.

EACH six months, on September 30th and again on March 31st, the Audit Bureau of Circulations issues a Publishers' Statement of average net paid circulations. Now for the first time we can submit a complete six months' Audit Bureau of Circulations' Publisher's Statement of the Record-American as a combination newspaper. Cocoanut Grove's Summer Show Has Opening Tonight

By GEORGE HOLLAND

With a Boston boy, Mickey Alpert, waving the music-leader's wand, and with an imported line of certified New York beauties as choristers, the Cocoanut Grove will unveil its first summer-show tonight. Dawn and Darrow, a standard pair of headliners among the night club dancers, is another featured attraction . . .

Maestro Alpert has assembled a picked unit of musicians in a type of music he calls "whispering rhythm." The emphasis is away from brass accents to "get on it earliest." It was a few months ago that Harry Warner, of the motion-picture producing and theatre-owning family, signed Alpert to lead the Boston representation of Rudy Vallee's "Connecticut Yankees" in the broadcasts from a full cast, [illegible] total loss of [illegible] comments.

(Dark Setting for Louella O. Parsons who is on vacation)

Sheila O'Sullivan, Maureen O'Sullivan's 19-year-old sister, who has been getting her dramatic teeth with Ireland's Abbey Players, took a test Saturday that was so good M-G-M has signed her to a contract.

What's even more interesting is that that after a small role or two to her credit, her gaun camera experience a part will be specially written into the next Tarzan picture for her. Will Tarzan fancy a son in his new picture with that very same title or will the Tarzan Gets A Sister-in-Law when Sheila joins the cast?

Chatter in Hollywood: Lucille Cassin, young New York actress who has been out here for several months, has the inside track for the starring role in Eddie Sutherland's "Life of Rudolph Valentino." However, it's amazing to hear that the script is playing down the Natacha Rambova marriage and making a big thing of Valentino's romance with Pola Negri.

For the money, Natacha was really being presented at the RKO the real love of Rudy's life. In Boston theater. These attractions an interview I had with him will continue through Wednesday years ago he told me that she had the greatest influence on his heart and career of any woman.

'Dark Victory' Stays at Olympia

Bette Davis in "Dark Victory," with George Brent and Humphrey Bogart coupled with Mickey Rooney's popular hit, "Huckleberry Finn," currently showing at the Washington Street Olympia will be shown Memorial day continuing thru Friday.

Tops Boston's Bill

James Cagney in "The Oklahoma Kid" and Richard Dix in "Twelve Crowded Hours" make up the all-screen program now being presented at the RKO Boston theater. These attractions will continue through Wednesday.

Lincoln Film Historical

"Young Mr. Lincoln," 20th Century-Fox production which will have its world premiere in Springfield, Ill., Memorial night, is an accurate document on the Great Emancipator's life.

Only one incident in the story is entirely fictional, according to Lamar Trotti, who wrote the script for this Cosmopolitan picture.

"In order to provide suspense and a suitable climax," Trotti explained, "we arranged a number of incidents in Lincoln's early life, but nearly all of them are at least part of the Lincoln legend.

"Curiously enough, fidelity of the picture to history is accidental. We tried to make a film consonant with Lincoln's character, with no special idea of clinging to the true story of his life. But so much of Lincoln was picturesque and dramatic that to fictionize would have been stupid."

STAR GAZERS—Joan Blondell and Mischa Auer apparently didn't find the moon in this scene from "East Side of Heaven," opening Thursday at the Keith Memorial. There will be two special previews Wednesday night at 7 and 10 o'clock.

Human Side of News -1- by EDWIN C. HILL

MOST AMERICAN work songs are now sung by people who never worked [illegible] ging camps, railroad gangs, steamboats, windjammers, farms and red iron pits where these songs were born.

This catches [illegible] but assumed [illegible] would now appear, that work songs couldn't be geared to factories and conveyor belts and that therefore swing music which nobody ever thought of associating with work was becoming the national fun machine for shipping out and never for work.

We are second with an error. Here's swing, the brand of Tommy Dorsey and Benny Goodman being used for a work song and quite pleasing you will agree, if you can lift a few of the less lively swing records.

ON THE U. S. S. Northampton, as the sailors start hefting 100 pound boxes of ammunition, the ship's orchestra is on the work deck by order of the commander, piping up a swing tune.

The rhythm paces the work, lessens fatigue, strikes the danger of accident with the precision of movement thus attained and makes for better team work all around. The Navy authorities say.

TOMMY DORSEY
"Rhythm Paces the Work"

That has been the story of work songs from the chant of galley slaves on down the ages to the Volga boatman.

Young swingsters turn up their noses at old songs, and no doubt will be shocked with the news that their liberated shag tunes, suppressed to induce only double-jointed antics, are now being put to work.

Some swing music could be used as a work song only for scaring mosquito bites or fighting cops, but you'll be surprised how some of this music fits into the work rhythm.

I don't know whether the sailors are using it, but "Deep Purple" should be one of the best of these.

Part of the efficacy of swing is the equivalent of understanding in literature. A slurred or clipped note somehow takes the listener into partnership and impels him to do his stuff perhaps emphatically with a muscular release, and that might mean a strong heave-ho on the hawser.

IF YOU WILL run off a batch of musical song songs on the phonograph I have in this you will agree that the ones which have the longest and widest popular appeal are those which both in sentiment and music have not been wrenched too far out of the picture of our traditional regional, pioneer memory and work songs.

"Deep Purple" is definitely in that picture.

Which suggests the perhaps trite observation that the clean break with the past is never so sharp and final as we think it is.

SING SING AMAZES HARVARD MAN

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 2 — Warden Lawes tells of a Harvard alumnus named Cunard who brought some football players to Sing Sing to play against the convict team. "This locker has no lock or key," Cunard complained, after changing into football togs. "And I've got $100 cash, a watch and a gold ring" . . . "Just leave it there," Lawes assured. "Nothing will happen to it" . . . "But this is Sing Sing prison," Cunard protested . . . "That's all right," said Lawes, "nothing will happen" . . . He rushed to the prison's dressing room, opened the locker and found his $100, watch and ring — untouched. "Say," he gasped "I couldn't get away with this anywhere else."

"GOVERNOR was [illegible] year" was B[illegible] Hamlin's endearing way of [illegible]ing every spectator to W. Cameron Forbes' [illegible] polo match, in the DePeyster-Andover game Saturday afternoon . . .

The "Governor," former Governor of the Philippines, a member of Boston's distinguished Forbes clan was host for the match on the beautiful polo field which stretches out in front of the large Georgian mansion in Norwood . . . His friendly, genial manner and enthusiasm for all horsey events have endeared him to followers of the Sport of Kings, and though his teammates on the Dedham polo team are all younger, his vigorous playing won the most hearty applause of the afternoon . . .

Mr. Hamlin, another noted figure in polo circles, watched the game from the roof of the little pavilion on one side of the field, while his daughter, Rosamond, and her beau alternated between sitting in their car and on the porch of the pavilion with other enthusiasts . . .

Wed in Wake Of White Net

By ANNICE BRINK

THIS IS rather a special moment for us, as fashion picker. We've found a wedding dress for sixteen dollars that couldn't be sweeter, nor in better taste, and it easily looks four times its price!

It flows in ethereal, unbroken lines—the kind that characterize net. And we're told that it is an exact copy of the frock worn by Katie Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story."

It seems that the nebulous loveliness of all the gauzy fabrics which are almost as light as air are the great favorites for bridal parties today. Mousseline [illegible] of the most popular [illegible] of net and [illegible] alone.

Turn about color schemes are chosen by most brides for their backgrounds—maid of honor in a frock whose accent is used for the bridesmaids' frocks. Theirs, in turn, are trimmed with the color which matches the maid of honor's frock.

But back to our own bride and bridesmaid: Lovely draped bodice lines and simple sleeves carry out the elegance of the net frock, which is a fit one for real pearls and white orchids as we say by of the values and no jewelry at all! It's $16.95 in sizes 10-20.

Summery and most effective is the bridesmaid's frock of organdie with deep dust ruffle effect and a naive round-necked bodice. It's $12.95 in sizes 10-20. [illegible]

You Can be Beautiful

Love And Marriage

Never Alone

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I've recently become acquainted with a very nice young girl, going to see her every Sunday. I have a job with long hours and can't see her during the week, which we don't seem to mind at all. But every time I do go to see her, her parents sit in the same room. They won't even let her go for a drive with me. Can you suggest how I can win her parents' confidence in me [illegible] we could go on Sunday? IN DOUBT.

Why not take the entire family for a Sunday outing? After you've done this a few times, and they feel better acquainted with you, they may have no objection to your [illegible] some time alone. The best of luck to you.

Cool Your Face Off

By ARLINE GOULD

WE'LL GUARANTEE that when you feel the delightful cooling sensation of a brand new cleansing cream that was formulated for hot weather use . . . you'll seriously contemplate retiring to some private spot when the mercury hangs high, and coating yourself all over with this miraculous cooler-offer, and playing hermit with nothing but this pale green stuff on until the thermometer indicates a more merciful temperature.

It actually does cool the skin, there's no doubt about it. And it's beginning to cause its own furore even before the dog days begin to bark in the dreary brow of it is a rather special [illegible] skin-coddler.

Just to smooth it on your face will send you off into a Dali like dream of comfort, where in your soothed brain things like igloos, and a polar bear dining among ice cakes, and a pair of skis with ice packed on the foot plates float languidly around!

It's the color an undine's complexion should be, if there were undines. A creamy, satiny off-green. And the very scent of mint that floats off it is like the touch of someone's hand under water, cool and light.

It is one of the most penetrating, thorough cleansers it's ever been your pleasure to use. Stale make-up, dust and perspiration are whisked off as far as they've managed to penetrate your pores. And that heavenly cool feeling stays with you for a long time.

To learn about this mint-cool hot weather cleansing cream which actually combats the overheated feeling, and keeps the skin delightfully cleansed and softened, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

THE SCREAMING of a man in agony shattered the night as Abagail approached. Then she had reached the clearing at last. One man was on the ground. He was clutching his breast, squirming his way toward Abe. Two others stood over him.

"Mr. Adam!" Abagail cried. Two words escaped her lips like stones before death for she saw that the two who remained standing were her sons. "You're alive. Oh thank God. But what—" She wanted to know. "Who was it?"

"Mr. Matt began hoarsely.

"I—" Abagail said. Her face was a mask that expressed more than she could say. An arm around each of her two sons.

Mr. Adam shouted. "You can.

RED SOX DIG IN TO HALT MARCH OF N.Y. YANKS

By JOE CASHMAN

The Yanks are here!

That was the thunder of their fence-busters and the forked lightning of their pitchers, roaring up from New York, which knocked your Sunday dinner into your lap.

The thunder and the lightning the Bronx Bombers have used for destruction in their wake to 17 triumphs in their last 18 efforts; to a 5½-game lead in their endeavor to capture a fourth straight American League pennant.

The thunder and the lightning which will lure a holiday horde of fans [illegible] to the Yankee Yard tomorrow because there isn't room to take care of 20,000 additional [illegible] who sought reservations.

The thunder and lightning which will have completed wrecking the American League race, unless it is rendered impotent before twilight shadows fall on Memorial Day.

For, with the season but six weeks old, it already has been shown that this thunder and lightning isn't to be weathered unless our Sox can weather it.

[illegible] And thunder and lightning will turn the A. L. flag hunt into the joke of the century.

The Bumpkets have visited all other battlefields faced all other [illegible]

Boston is the only corner of their world they haven't conquered. Boston, too, houses the only baseball army they haven't yet put dismayed.

The Sox have [illegible] games than the Yanks, while all other opponents have suffered anywhere from 9 to 17 more defeats [illegible]

And a single game today and doubleheader tomorrow will furnish the all important answer.

The lead isn't at stake. The Sox would still be two and one-half [illegible] the series.

But the engagement will reveal whether the Yanks can cakewalk to the pennant by any margin they desire or must keep hearing down to hold off Joe Cronin & Co.

That's why the series is something to get excited about; why it will hold nation-wide interest.

Joseph Vincent McCarthy, who commands the champs, will [illegible] this.

Look at the records.

First in league standing — the Yanks.

First in league hitting — the Yanks.

First in league fielding — the Yanks.

First in league pitching — the Yanks.

First in league home runs — the Yanks.

Yes, [illegible] the Yanks are in a class by themselves until the Red Sox are in the same class.

That we'll soon know. [illegible]

Fair, Cooler Weather Tomorrow

Fair, and a bit cooler tomorrow, was the weatherman's word today for the hundreds of thousands planning holiday sports fun.

Thus the capacity throng at Fenway Park for the Yanks-Sox holiday battle with the Sox, and the 40,000 planning to see the Suffolk racing, and the tens of thousands interested in other events have a flawless afternoon in store.

This is the season of series between ancient rivals of the college diamond and a real powerful rivalry gets going tomorrow at Fitton Field, Worcester when the Crusaders of Holy Cross launch an offensive drive against Boston College which they hope and expect will be much more potent than that which they used last year.

The Pets' pitching has been a problem but now a pitcher, Max Buschbaum, seems to have nailed that flaw.

From Arm Ache to Glory--Lefty Grove

THE TEXT FOR TODAY'S LITTLE LECTURE is Lefty Grove, or the theory that the best of life's triumphs spring from physical pain. For Lefty, victor in three games insists that he is a better pitcher — not for raw, blazing speed, but for technical knack— than he was before he developed an armache in 1934 and a case of numbness last year.

AUSTEN LAKE

It was March 5, five years ago, when Lefty suddenly stopped exercising in Sarasota's pitching pits and stalked to the clubhouse, cradelling his left arm with his right. It was a journalistic moment when Lefty's overt little act, how he forked up his food, his sullen fits and bursts of lobby boisterousness, was news, wired eagerly to the owl and breakfast editions. So when Lefty warped his pitching hinge and stamped away in a splatter of profanity with his lower lip hanging like a shawl, the press gallery had bounced off their perches and sprinted for the telegraph.

It is history now how, during the intervening months, every high priced muscle-witch and bone wizard had ganders at the afflicted part. They jerked out his teeth, clipped his tonsils and made X-ray portraits of his jiblets, while the journalists bled columns of tearful type about the tragedy. And we did it all over again last year when he came down with what was called "vascular paralysis." Yet to this day Lefty doesn't know exactly what caused or cured his twinges except that gradually they leaked out his finger tips

Lefty Went Back to School

THE IMPORTANT THING IS THAT LEFTY now credits pitching renascence to his miseries. For, in each case, while he fretted over his handicaps, he kept oiling his elbow with little practice lobs and tiny studio tosses, heaving the summer hours away in the ball pen and experimenting with all the pitching arts that he had never found time to tinker with before.

So he says, he sprouted a new curve, discovered the secret of changing pace, learned to sink the "string" in slow balls, and to toss the "nibbler" as pitchers call the offstride, off-center pitch which contrives not so much to blind the batter as to make him mix his feet.

The fruits of this painful period are being harvested now at the age of 39. And though he says he can no longer stand like a human shot gun, and blaze the ball past the batters, he finds himself a more effective pitcher for the miserly refinements of his art. In short, Lefty ceased being a physical freak and became a scientist. With less of his old stuff, except in the pinches, he rates himself a better pitcher than he ever was at the top of his muscular peak, and throws fewer fat pitchers by the ratio of 10 to 1. So he says.

Yanks and Sox Start Bombing

Reds Choice in National League

IF SOMEBODY will place a little protection around the stands where the faithful eat peanuts and drink pop, the Red Sox and Yankees will start bombing.

I believe the public should be given all possible protection against the terrific batting power that will be turned loose at Fenway Park today and tomorrow.

The cry "The Yanks Are Here," has got the whole town by the ears. Even if Joe McCarthy's club has a healthy lead in the American League pennant fight, the fans know they will get intensified action for their money no matter who wins.

The Red Sox have been the only club in the American League that hasn't been licked as soon as the Yanks have walked out on the ball field. I do not believe American League teams have displayed too much gimp when the Yanks have breezed into action. There has been too much of that feeling that New York has too much class for the opposition. No ball club is able to do itself justice with such a mental outlook.

Joe Cronin's Red Sox have never acknowledged the Yanks were a superior ball club. I think Cronin would run any player out of the ball park who even suggested that the Sox have not at least an even chance of defeating the world's champions.

Eddie Collins felt last season that a few pitching breaks would have enabled his club to have won some of the crucial games with the Yanks. If the Sox had done so, they would have been closer to McCarthy's outfit at the close of the season than they were.

Man for man, as far as the regulars go, the Sox compare favorably with the Yanks. The edge the champions have is in pitching. A power club with splendid pitching must be given the advantage over all opposition.

This is why the Yanks are a 1-to-3 favorite with Jew takers. The speculative element is of the opinion that only a miracle will enable the Sox or any other club to stop the Yanks.

In the National League the Reds are even money pennant favorites, while the Cardinals are quoted at 3 to 2.

In my pre-season prediction, I named the Yanks and Reds as flag winners. So far both clubs have come up to spring expectations.

Holiday Will Have Huge Sports Crowds

HOLIDAY SPORTS events will attract huge sports gatherings. There will be 38,000 persons at the Red Sox-Yanks double-header, while there will be between 45,000 and 50,000 persons at Suffolk Downs.

The various other local sports events will also have their followings. Sports are certainly tops with the public.

It is amazing the way race goers keep digging up fresh money for the mutuel machines. I look for the handle at Suffolk Downs tomorrow to hop merrily up around the $750,000 mark.

The calibre of the racing at the East Boston track has been good. There have been sufficient high class horses on the grounds so that there has been sturdy competition in the important stake races.

On Saturday, Sassy Lady defeated Aeriel Toy, the 4-5 favorite, in the feature to pay $8.60 to win. Sassy Lady on her showing this year was worth $2 of anybody's money. This speedy stepper had previously won four races in 1939, and yet was overlooked by the smart money which rode with Aeriel Toy.

I have never cared for odds on favorites since one day at Rockingham Discovery ran out of the money. If one is going to beat the races, one must pick horses that pay 3 to 1 or better. The quickest way of going broke at the races is by playing favorites and odds on choices.

There are few thoroughbreds that stand out so much over a field that they warrant leaving the post at 3-5 and 4-5.

Random Shots at Target

THERE WILL be an international touch to the 10-round bout between Henry Chmielewski of Poland and Lou Brouillard, New England middleweight champion, at Worcester on Friday night . . . If Chmielewski wins he says he will claim Brouillard's title, and that if Lou wants a return bout the match will have to be staged at Warsaw, Poland.

The Max Baer-Lou Nova 5-round bout in the Yankee Stadium, New York, will furnish a fall opponent for Joe Louis . . . Tony Galento will be the June 28 sacrifice to Louis, while neither Nova nor Baer has a chance to beat the Louis of today . . . Nova with two years more ring experience might win from the "Brown Bomber" . . . It is to be regretted that the Californian youngster is being rushed to the front at such fast strides.

The final decision on the McCoy-Mann bout at Bridgeport was that Al won on a technical knockout in two rounds . . . The Connecticut Boxing Commission decided that Mann was helpless when one of his handlers struck the gong 50 seconds before the end of the second round.

With guest referees banned in Connecticut as a result of Benny Leonard being the third man in the ring at the McCoy-Mann match, Jack Sharkey has lost an assignment to officiate in the Nutmeg State.

Red Sox Give Yanks Acid Test

all other Yank foes—courage and power.

They haven't the pitching to match the champs. Neither have they the fielding.

SOX HAVE GUTS

But they have the punch and "guts" to hold their own and possibly gain the duke in a slugging match.

Better yet, they realize their strength and their limitations and will act accordingly.

Seven big bats in the hands of Jimmy Foxx, Teddy Williams, Joe Cronin, Joe Vosmik, Bobby Doerr and Jim Tabor carry the Fenway hopes of nullifying the thunder and lightning of the invaders.

"Are we holding a meeting? Ted Williams asked Joe Cronin just before the Sunday set-to with the Senators.

"See that rightfield stands," answered Boss Joe. "Well, just you park a drive or two in there today. That's the meeting."

Thumping Theodore did that little thing for the second time in two afternoons, while Manager Joe was collecting a homer, as the natives made it four in a row over the Nats, 12 to 7.

And that's the only kind of meeting they'll hold in preparation for the Yankee series.

"Blast, blast, blast" will be their strategy.

They aren't going to out-pitch or out-field the champs, unless the age of miracles suddenly returns.

They may out-slug the visitors.

For they can boast of power marks that compare very favorably with the clouting feats of the Yanks.

WILLIAMS LEADS LEAGUE

Mr. Walloping Williams leads the league in runs-batted-in with 32. Foxx, Cronin, Vosmik and Tabor all have knocked in 20 or more tallies. Among the Yanks only Dickey, Gordon and Selkirk have chased home more than 20 tallies.

There isn't a Sox, with the possible exception of Cramer, who isn't a home run threat every time he steps to the platter at the Fens.

Several of the Yanks' big guns, including Dickey, Selkirk, Henrich, Keller and Rolfe, are left-handers, whose four-baggers promise to be few and far between at the Yawkey Yard, with its extremely deep right field.

What's more encouraging, the Sox are slugging at their best at the moment. They parked no less than eight drives out of the orchard in the past three days.

They've bunched their hits, too, for big innings.

And that's the way they'll beat the Yanks, if they beat 'em, as they firmly believe they will.

BAGBY TO PITCH

Jim Bagby, Jr., is starting on the hill today.

The Yanks, keen to get a jump, will counter with their best bet, Charlie "Red" Ruffing, who blanked the natives on opening day and has hung up six straight wins since.

There have been changes in the Yanks lineup, if not in their success, since that Inaugural.

Lou Gehrig finally called off his iron man stunt and gave way to "Babe" Dahlgren, the old Red Sox, who still holds down first base in an infield that retains Gordon at second, Crosetti at short and Rolfe at third.

Joe DiMaggio, leading the team in hitting when he hurt a knee, hasn't played since before the start of the 17 out of 18 streak, causing McCarthy to introduce Charlie Kellar and Joe Gallagher in the outfield along with Tom Henrich. Jake Powell and George Selkirk.

"DiMag" was used as a pinch-hitter on Saturday last, indicating he's about ready to return. So the make-up of the Yank garden today is a question at the moment. It doesn't matter much.

This will be strictly a test of thunder against thunder.

Swing those bats, you Red Sox. The Yanks are here!

PAUL RUNYAN blasts his way out of sand trap at Metropolis Club, White Plains, N. Y., as he battled to three-way tie with Henry Picard and Vic Chezzi. All three finished with 283 total.

PICARD NO. 8 IRON TIES RUNYAN IN MET.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 29 (AP)—You can't beat perfection.

Ask Paul Runyan, PGA champion and pro at the Metropolis Club, where the 32d annual metropolitan golf championship—normally a three-day affair—is now in its fifth day.

As Runyan and Henry Picard started out today to play off the tie that still engulfed them, the story of Sunday's playoff, among Runyan, Picard and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., revolved around a shot that should live as one of the real classics of modern golf.

NO. EIGHT IRON

Those three favorites had tied at 283 Saturday at the end of the regulation 72 hole play of the "Met, but there's nothing "regulation" about this preview of next month's national open.

Runyan's magnificent golf yesterday on the front nine and the next four holes had made Ghezzi yell "uncle." That left only Picard, but Henry had the answer, and it came on the 18th hole.

Runyan was one stroke up on Picard and was on the green, some 25 or 30 feet away from the cup, in two.

That left him nicely in for his par. And that, of course, meant that Picard had to find a birdie to tie. Standard figures weren't enough.

Yards away and in the middle of the fairway, the courageous Hershey pro chose for his all-important second shot his eight iron, stroked it perfectly—and the ball, after a high arching flight, skidded to a stop a bare two feet from the cup.

PICARD SINKS PUTT

The gallery, pulling for dear life for Homester Runyan, had to cheer.

Paul gallantly tried to win with a long, curling putt, but the ball dried inches short.

Then Henry measured his putt as a long-threatening rain started to fall, and tapped the ball home—sending the tourney into another play-off.

Sostilio Races At Topsfield

Newton's Joe Sostilio, one of the most popular big car drivers in New England, will have plenty of backing in tomorrow's gruelling 20-mile race at the Topsfield Fair Grounds.

Sostilio's home town admirers plan to motor out to the race track to cheer the Italian-American speed merchant who has been racing on tracks of the East for 10 years.

Other local drivers who will have a cheering section are Eddie Casterline of Malden and Bob Gardner of Cohasset, favorites at Topsfield last year.

Leroy Stone of Keene, N. H., who has been racing at Keene and Newmarket, N. H. tracks, boasts a fast car and is expected to give the pack a merry battle throughout the test.

The three New York drivers are expected to arrive at the Topsfield track early the holiday morning.

TIGERS, BROWNS PLAY

New Record Seen In 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29 (INS)—A new speed record probably will be set by the winner of tomorrow's 27th annual renewal of the 500-mile Indianapolis motor speedway race, most experts were agreed today.

In addition to the fastest field in history, this year's classic will have the advantage of recent improvements in fuels and motors as well as a resurfaced speedway back stretch, lending further credence to predictions of a record.

125 M. P. H. AVERAGE

The standing record of an average of 117.2 miles per hour for the 500 miles is held by last year's winner, Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Cal.

It is expected that the victor tomorrow in the Memorial Day feature will have to average at least 125 m. p. h.

A full complement of 33 cars awaits the starter's signal. The last six available places were won in yesterday's final qualifying trials. Average speed of the 33 qualified starters—123.547 m. p. m. —was an all time high.

Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, who has the coveted "pole position"—the spot nearest the rail in the first row—set a qualifying record of 130.138.

Only Lou Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., a three-time winner of the event, came close to Snyder's time, with an average of 130.067. Meyer is considered a great bet to win his fourth classic.

Wilbur Shaw, third driver in the first row, made himself a decided home town threat when he qualified with 128.977.

Here are the other starters, and their qualifying times:

Second Row—Ted Horn, Burbank, Cal., 127.323; Chet Miller, Detroit, 124.516; George Bailey, Detroit 123.821.

Sport Interludes

Hockey Magnates Shaking Up Rosters {Brimsek Worries Over Possible Trade

By BILL GRIMES

Before the curtain ascends on the 1939-40 season, the National Hockey League rosters will undergo so many drastic changes that even the most rabid fans will have difficulty keeping up to the shifts.

Already Connie Smythe has sent four Maple Leafs to the New York Americans, the Rangers have assigned Cecil Dillon, Bill Carse and Allen to the Black Hawks and Eddie Shore has been selected by a certain party to handle the Springfield Indians. And, Frankie Brimsek is out in Eveleth, Minn., running a fever because he's heard rumors that he has been drawn to tend goal for the new N. H. L. club in Philadelphia . . . The hockey fans are very gullible but there must be a limit to what they'll go for . . . However, it's a trifle too muggy to get steamed up over hockey.

Frankie Brimsek

As I see it, the Metropolitan style of four ball competition can be the savior of open tournaments . . . Interest in medal play tournaments has been on the wane for years . . . And, when Brae Burn draws but 128 contestants in two days, there's no future for stroke tourneys . . .

The Wollaston Golf Club would have attracted more than 200 golfers but for the fact that the committee forgot to announce that its two day open was a Metropolitan four ball event . . . Under the Metropolitan system a foursome can engage in no less than six different matches in one round . . . Some up and coming golf or country club is going to sponsor a Metropolitan four ball tournament, offer a cut rate of, say, $12 a foursome and clean up.

ROCKPORT IN SHAPE

Frank McEvers writes that the Rockport Country Club course is in great shape and that he's looking forward to a fine season . . . John Kent, the typo, who paired with Eddie Buonaiuto to win the Wollaston open, played with a 10 handicap . . . He was 78 on his own ball and John Corcoran did a job on his state handicap . . .

Harry Fellen, Wollaston is one of the most dependable four ball players in this vicinity . . . He helped Bob Adams, junior champion of the state, two strokes at Wollaston Saturday and his contribution won the low gross . . .

Jock Gray

Jock Gray, the Wollaston professional, now realizes that soccer is a much milder game than football . . . George Cole, the former Dartmouth end, proved that point . . . The Newspapermen's Golf members are carving their full names on the fairways of Willie Duffy's Trapelo course today . . . The N. E. P. G. A. is in session at United Shoe . . . It's a Metropolitan four ball tourney . . .

The Bay State, Rhode Island and Connecticut teams will be at Oyster Harbors over the week-end for the Tri-State matches . . . On Friday the members in good standing of the P. G. A. will play a 36-hole qualifying round at Wannamoisett for the eight places allotted to New England.

The second annual Metacomet Golf Club four ball invitation tournament will be played June 9 to 11 . . . It is one of the best take-ins of the season, for the Metacomet members go out of their way to give visitors a good time . . . Marcus McSweeney is down to a mere shadow of his old self worrying over the details of the coming New England Boot and Shoe Association tournament which will be staged at Wollaston June 5.

A. Draper Knight is assisting Marcus . . . Walter A. Brown, general manager of the Boston Garden and the Arena, is at his home out in Hopkinton, suffering from a stomach ailment . . . Eddie Collins hasn't been around the American League circuit in three years . . . He's never seen the Briggs Stadium in Detroit.

Walter Johnson is still broadcasting baseball in Griffith Stadium . . . Although he succeeded the "ace" baseball announcer, Arch McDonald, "Barney" is getting by in great style . . . "Lefty" Grove is the most ambitious player on the Red Sox roster . . . After pitching the Sox to an 11 to 4 victory over the Nats on Saturday, "Lefty" ran along the left field wall yesterday for almost a half hour and then he fed balls to pitchers for 40 minutes during batting practice.

"Lefty" Grove

Moe Berg makes Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams look good when he's pitching batting practice . . . Invariably Moe pitches to their strength . . . The high school game between Lowell and Lawrence on Saturday was a hectic affair . . . With the score deadlocked to start the ninth inning, McSwiggin, Lowell, combed one over the fence with two on . . . As he rounded second, he heard the umpire's decision that his drive was foul, so McSwiggin cut across the diamond and returned to the batter's box . . . Then, the umpire declared that the hit was fair and that Lowell was three runs out in front, despite the fact that McSwiggin hadn't rounded the bases . . . Fortunately for the arbiter, Lawrence won the game in the 12th inning . . .

Scotch Team Beat All-Stars

ST. LOUIS, May 29 (AP)—The touring Scottish international all-star soccer team routed a team of St. Louis all-stars, 10 to 2, before a crowd of 7500 persons.

The invaders lived up to every bit of praise that has been heaped upon them since their American debut.

Leading their attack was Archie Garrett, who scored seven of the ten goals. He performs at center forward and his accuracy in shooting was phenomenal.

The Scots held a 3 to 1 lead at the half, Garrett scoring five times in the last frame. The other two goals this period were scored by Gillies and the other first-period point came on a long, low shot by McDonald.

The first St. Louis score resulted from a penalty kick, and the last one was driven in near the end of the game by Buff Donnelli, forward.
